Guys guys guys

Winnie Dean

Fuck I'm at work but

But, she has to get this out. Lord, she's not going to be able to document this properly. Winnie really wishes she should take pictures but she also really needs this job and that's one sure way to be rid of it.

Doctor Boyfriend, the name she and her class friends have given to Professor Graham's fancy pants lover, has just walked into the fancy pants restaurant she's working at to pay for her classes this year. And he's not alone.

He's also not in the company of her forensics teacher, Will Graham. No, instead of the odd, anti-social professor, there is a dark haired woman on Dr. Boyfriend's arm... Dr. Ex? Who knows.

Maybe she should take a photo. Graham's not her all-time favorite professor, but he's not awful, and no one deserves to be cheated on and lied to, trust Winnie on that one.

Winnie Dean

drbf just came in with a woman

She watches the hostess lead the two of them to a table. It's only her poor luck that has Grace moving towards Winnie's section. She spares half a thought to hope that they're dropped off *any*where else, but from the dread pooling in her stomach, Winnie knows what's about to happen.

at m y section updates incoming ohmgof

Winnie Dean

shit I can't straight face this

She can't, they've been all but stalking this man, taking bets on his personal life with her professor for going on weeks now. And she's suppose to act like she's never before in her life seen this man. Like she didn't watch him make out with her weirdest teacher in a cheap bar. Like she doesn't know that he makes his partner fancy lamb meals and delivers them for lunch. Like she doesn't know that he lint rolls copious amounts of dog hair off of the bespoke suits he wears.

Because, he has to, right? Being so much as in the room with Dr. Graham must require a lint roller, let alone close enough to kiss him in a crowded bar.

She can't do this. She's going to do something stupid or ask about Graham or-

Well, she needs this job so she makes her way over to his table anyway.

The woman he's with is pretty, she has long-ish dark hair in loose curls. She's in a dress and heals and she doesn't look out of place in the restaurant the way Winnie thinks Graham would. IN fact, this woman doesn't even look out of place with Dr. (maybe Ex) Boyfriend.

The Pais most certainly look like they could be together.

They order a bottle of wine, not the most expensive wine on their menu, but definitely not one Winnie could afford herself. She delivers the wine and tries not to pour it on herself, or Dr.Boyfriend for that matter, she doesn't know if he deserves it yet.

Winnie doesn't actually get any of the juicy details she had been hoping for. Their conversations stalls each time she steps up to their table.

She thinks she'll at least be ale to get his name off his card when they pay. If they pay separately, she's decided in her mind, she'll bet on Doctor Boyfriend being a no good, very rich cheater.

Of course, Graham would have to have access to his bank account for that to make sense but, either way that's the bet she's taking. If they pay separately, the boyfriend is cheating and that Graham would be able to tell because they share a bank account.

If he pays for the both of them, well, that means that either he and Graham have already broken up or this is something else entirely and honestly there are too many options to guess.

Her phone is muted in her pocket - she won't receive notifications for anything except a phone call from her mother, just incase of emergencies - but she knows the group chat is firing off questions and comments left and right.

When she goes to collect his card she finally overhears something worth mentioning. The woman asks about 'Will' which of course has to be Dr. Will Graham. But Winnie can't exactly stick around to listen to his response without it being quite obvious to them both.

The name on the card tells her that Hannibal Lecter - and, god, she's never going to remember how to spell that - is paying for both of them, despite the fact that he'd only had a bit of the wine while the woman had ordered and eaten a meal.

He smiles at her like he knows exactly what she's thinking as the pair get up to leave.

Damnit, she has two more hours of this shift before she can inform the peanut gallery.

Winnie Dean

Okay guys, Dr. Boyfriend, AKA Hannible Lecter, came in with a pretty woman, ordered a whole bottle of wine, sat and talked with said pretty woman for almost exactly one hour and forty-five minutes while she ate and then TIPPED ME THE TOTAL

Winnie Dean

No bc guys I might cry, he doubled his bill and this place isn't cheap ok

Winnie Dean

Oh also btw he paid for her

Hayden C.

Oh nice

Hayden C.

That sounded sarcastic but I meant it, nice.

Flora F.

Okay. See, the fact that he paid for her too really raises some questions though

Winnie Dean

She asked him about "Will"

Winnie Dean

I couldn't really stick around, but at the very least, she knows and Graham either can't see his bank stuff (probable) or also knows

Levi *

Could have been business maybe

Levi *

@Winnie go read up the messages you missed

Levi *

there have been minor developments

Amelia D.

Couldn't have been a patient in public, could have been another psych, could be someone with the FBI? maybe family, does @Hayden s link say anything about family, maybe a sister or cousin?

Winnie Dean

Maybe family? they didn't really look alike, but she matched his fancy pants vibe

Hayden C.

Not a patient. Maybe a psych or FBI but that makes it weird that he paid? He's not American so maybe not? Family is a good one, the link doesn't say anything except that his dad was a count so he got the title

Levi *

or he's cheating

Amelia D.

Or that

Hayden C.
